ABSTRACT

Designed for use by cooperative education instructors, counselors, librarians, students, and teachers, this career bibliography identifies more than 2,000 sources of occupational information (e.g., government agencies, professional associations, private businesses) which offer over 5,000 free or inexpensive job-related publications. Five hundred and twenty-two occupations are listed alphabetically, and sources of information (with mailing addresses and publication titles) are alphabetized under each occupational title. Each listing is also numbered with a "Dictionary of Occupational Titles" (DOT) code. The code numbers are indexed in the back of the book and are clustered according to jobs having the same basic occupational or worker characteristics and similar educational requirements. Thus occupations related to an occupation of primary interest can be identified. In addition, a study guide and checklist is appended to aid in conducting a personal exploration of specific occupations and alternatives. Purposes of the guide and directions for its use are presented on the opening pages. (BL)

Documents acquired by ERIC include many informal unpublished materials not available from other sources. ERIC makes every effort to obtain the best copy available. Nevertheless, items of marginal reproducibility are often encountered and this affects the quality of the microfiche and hardcopy reproductions ERIC makes available via the ERIC Document Reproduction Service (EDRS). EDRS is not responsible for the quality of the original document. Reproductions supplied by EDRS are the best that can be made from the original.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The publication of this document was funded by The Pennsylvania Department of Education, Bureau of Vocational Education. Their support is gratefully acknowledged.

The author would like to express his appreciation for the sustained efforts of Miss Marilyn Stevens, Miss Patricia Fields, Mr. David Rosko and Mr. Gary Thomas, who by and large were responsible for the collection of the data contained herein.

The author also wishes to express his appreciation to Mr. James P. Bucher for his editorial assistance.

INTRODUCTION

If educators are to have a sound basis for vocational counseling and curriculum design, there must be a source of occupational information that is both accurate and current. The student engaged in the career decision making process has a similar need. Since the financial resources of both the educational institution and the student are usually limited it is important that the cost of obtaining occupational information be minimal.

In the summer and fall of 1976 the Career Development and Placement Center of The Pennsylvania State University surveyed approximately 3,000 potential sources of occupational information. As a result of this survey, more than 2,000 sources offering over 5,000 free or inexpensive publications have been identified. The sources and their addresses have been listed alphabetically by occupational title in this publication. Five hundred twenty-two occupations relating to both secondary and post-secondary programs are listed herein.

This guide to free and inexpensive information was designed for use by cooperative education instructors, counselors, librarians, students and teachers. Examination of the contents of this publication should provide a basis for beginning or revising a career library. The counselor or teacher will also find this publication helpful in responding to the career information needs of students on an individual basis.

The Cooperative Education Instructor of a Diversified Occupations Program has a continual need for occupational information to be used in the related theory class. The Diversified Occupations Program by its very title suggests a need for information pertaining to a large number of areas. This guide will help the instructor meet that need.

EXPLORING AN OCCUPATION

As a student begins to explore an occupation he or she is often overwhelmed by the amount of information that is available. Therefore, a need exists for a method whereby pertinent information can be organized and important career issues introduced. The Occupational Awareness Inventory (Appendix A) has been designed to address these needs, serving as an occupational study guide and check list to aid the students in exploring an occupation.

THE JOB CLUSTER CONCEPT

The present and projected state of flux in our society requires that today's graduate be a rather flexible individual, possessing the ability to adapt to a rapidly changing and somewhat unpredictable world of work. There are many who believe that today's educational programs should provide students with capabilities which are transferable within clusters of jobs. A job cluster is defined as a group of jobs with similar educational requirements.

On page 3 through 156 of this guide there is an index of Occupational Titles by Dictionary of Occupational Title (D.O.T.) Code. Since the D.O.T. groups jobs having the same basic occupational or worker characteristics, this provides a basis for identifying job clusters. Thus literature describing occupations related to the occupation of primary interest can be identified.

HOW TO USE THE CAREER BIBLIOGRAPHY

Each occupational title will show at least one address to which the user may write for occupational literature. In most cases specific titles of the literature are given. However, if no titles appear after the address, merely request any literature pertaining to the occupational title.

You may assume that the literature is free unless a price is shown.

Whenever possible, requests should be made on your institution's stationery, particularly when quantities of a given item are requested.
